MANCHESTER SHIRT
AMNESTY!

"So, this is where we get Chelsea shirts, right?"

Nuts Manchester shirt amnesty!

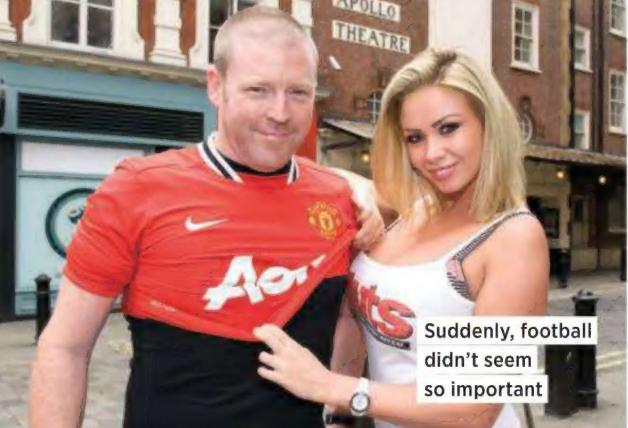

We generously give southern United fans the opportunity to swap their shirts for City ones!

→ WITH MAN City winning their first title for 44 years, the pendulum of supremacy has swung towards Man United's "noisy neighbours".

So we went to the heartland of United's support base – London – to encourage their supporters to cross from red to blue with a free City shirt!

THANKS TO SPORTS DIRECT.COM FOR THE MAN CITY SHIRTS.
WORDS: SI CUNNINGHAM PHOTOS: JIM LINCOLN

Jason, 26
East London

"I'm ditching them. They've had a shocker. The girls have persuaded me to go for City!"

Richard, 37
Ipswich

"No chance, you're having a laugh. Hang on a minute, is that the new City shirt? Ha-ha!"

Adam, 29
London

"Ha-ha! Absolutely not. Are you trying to get us battered or something?"

Frank, 27
North London

"I won't be changing. I'll have a shirt and flog it, though. They won't miss the money."

George, 26
London

"Sorry, United, you've let the fans down. It's a sad day, but I'm going to take you up on your offer."

The new Cadbury's Flake ad was going to be a winner

Behind the scenes on Rihanna's new vid!

The lady herself posts a stunning photo set!

→ WE HAVEN'T seen the promo video for Rihanna's new single, Where Have You Been, but we're going to throw this out there: it's going to be the sauciest thing since Mr Ketchup whipped up his tomato-based chip improver. How do we know this? Because RiRi posted a load of super-saucy behind-the-scenes snaps on her Facebook page. Can you post a "double likes with a cherry on top"? That thing!

"I think I've found the plug!"

"Are you sure
this will cure
my hiccups?"

"This 'drought' is getting ridiculous"

"My back feels odd - has my hair
dye run again?"

Show offs!

Five men. Two gliders. Complete and utter madness!

→ IT'S TESTAMENT to the antics of the Red Bull chaps that this sort of thing now seems like an average day at Energy Drink Central. For the fact-interested, this shot shows a five-man squadron of wingsuit-sporting ments buzzing two Blanik gliders.

Cruising at 4,000m above some Austrian alps, at 110mph, the wingsuit gang inched their way into the glider formation, before eyeballing the pilots. "We were able to look the pilots straight in the eye! I've still got goosebumps!" team leader Paul Steiner told Nuts. Before hitting the gents and weeing pure, golden adrenaline.

"I'll give you 'The gate's closed'!"

Brain surgery on facebook!

American surgeon raises the bar for website posts by updating live brain surgery!

1 SITTING COMFORTABLY?

The patient's skull is held firmly in place as the doc will use GPS-like neuronavigation to go straight to the tumour.

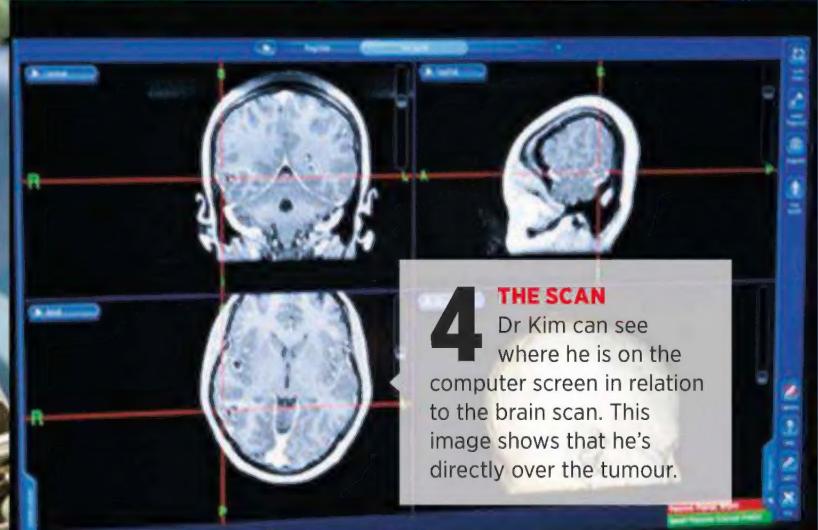

2 KEEP STILL

Dr Kim starts the procedure. The probe he uses will find the tumour via triangulation, so the patient mustn't move a millimetre.

3 TOOLBOX

These metal clamps are Greenberg Retractors which hold the scalp flaps in place after the patient's skin has been peeled out of the way.

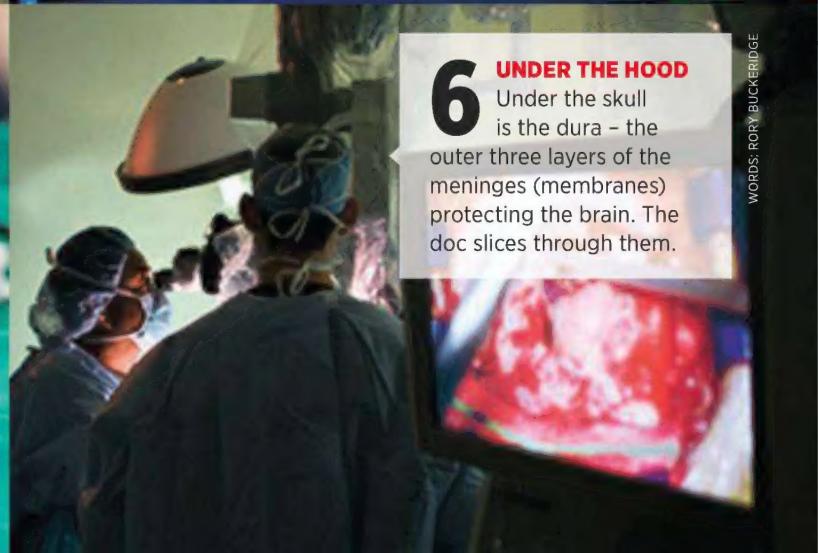

4 THE SCAN

Dr Kim can see where he is on the computer screen in relation to the brain scan. This image shows that he's directly over the tumour.

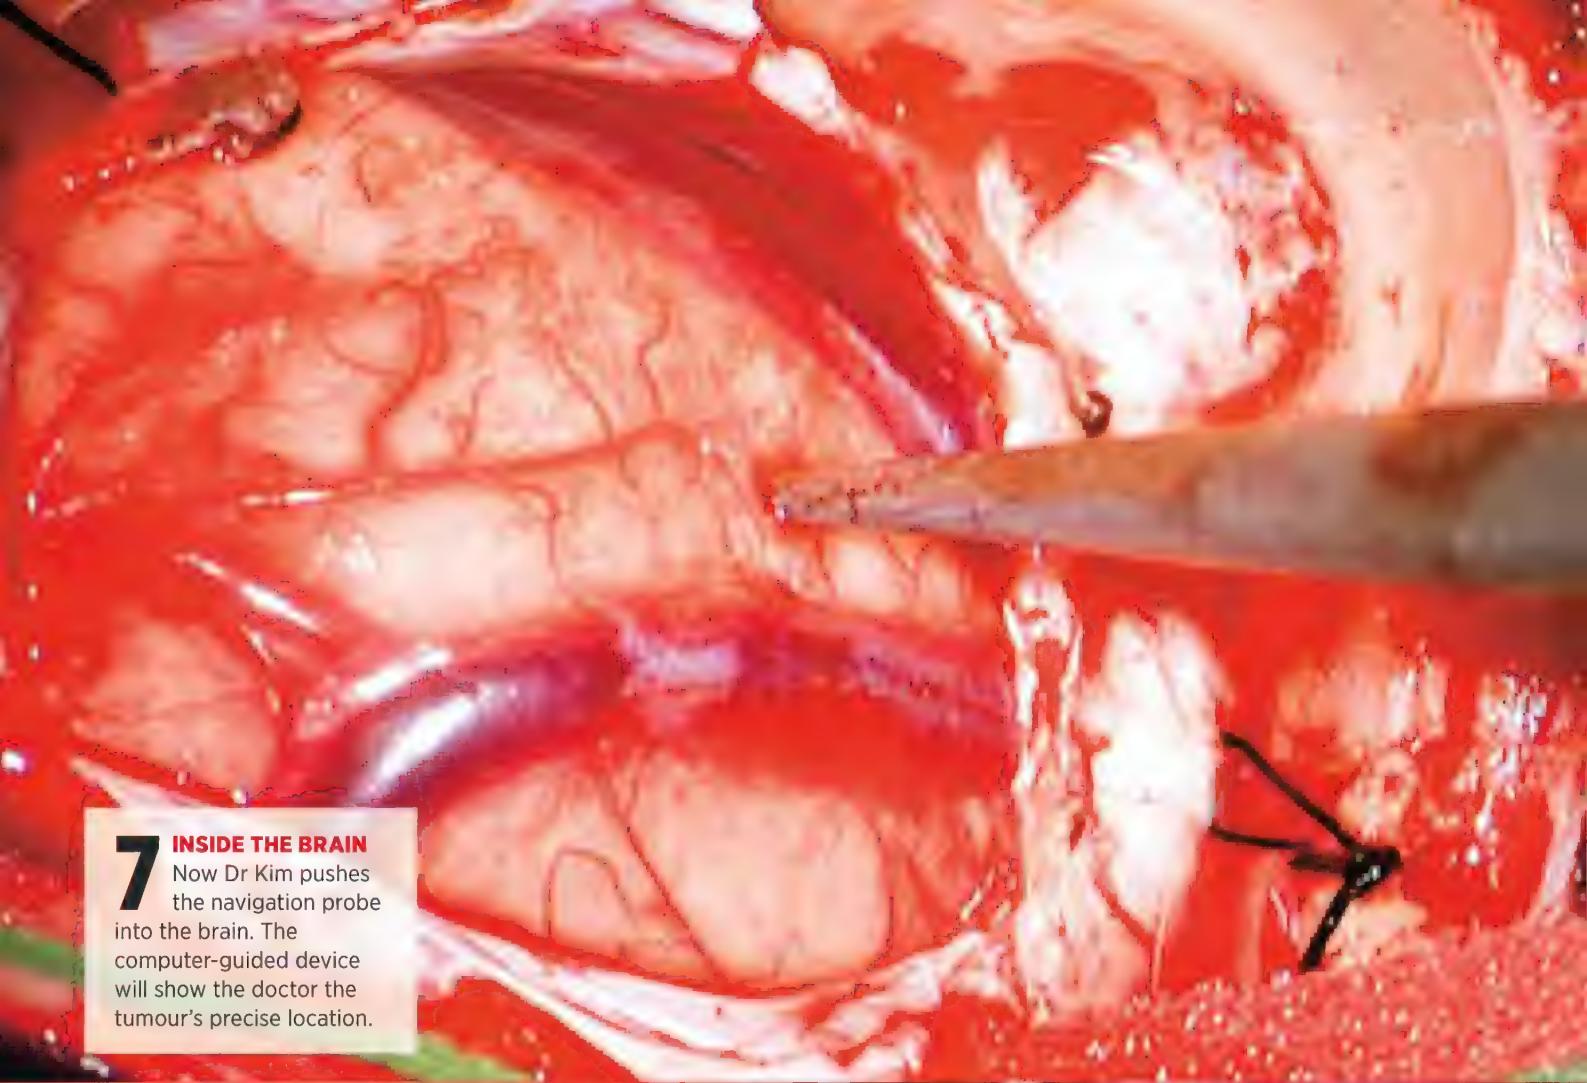

5 LIFTING THE LID

The skull is sliced open with a pressure-sensitive drill. The bone flap is then handed to the surgical nurse to make sure it stays sterile.

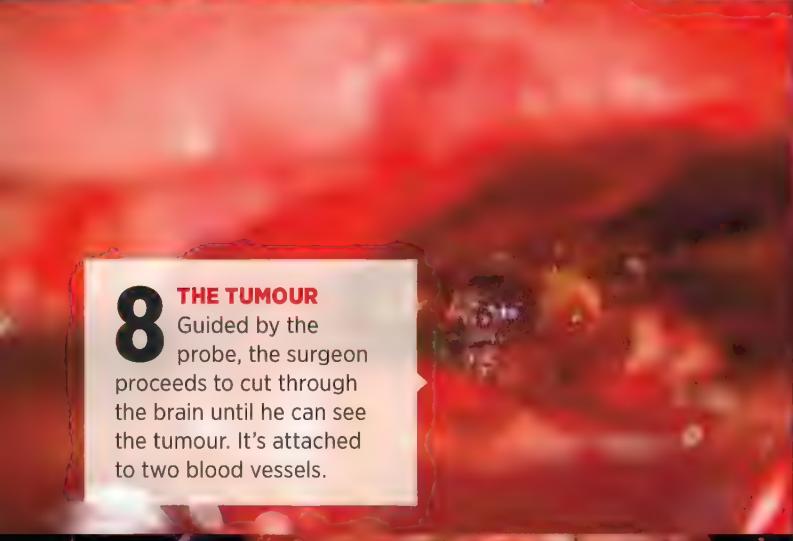

6 UNDER THE HOOD

Under the skull is the dura – the outer three layers of the meninges (membranes) protecting the brain. The doc slices through them.

7 INSIDE THE BRAIN
Now Dr Kim pushes the navigation probe into the brain. The computer-guided device will show the doctor the tumour's precise location.

8 THE TUMOUR
Guided by the probe, the surgeon proceeds to cut through the brain until he can see the tumour. It's attached to two blood vessels.

9 OUT WITH IT
The tumour is very carefully cut away from the pair of supporting blood vessels and removed in its entirety. It's then sent off for evaluation.

10 CLEANING UP
Small plates and screws are used to reattach the bone flap. The skull is the only bone which doesn't require pressure to knit together.

11 GOOD AS NEW
The incision is closed and the scalp stitched back together. Amazingly, the patient was up and about within just three hours!

Lego tower facts

- The tower was built by 4,000 people, using half a million bricks.
- It took five days to construct.
- Built to mark Lego's 80th birthday, the final brick was laid by Danish Crown Prince Frederik (Lego's a Danish company).
- This tower broke the record set in France last October by 30cm.
- South Korea is, in fact, reclaiming the world record. They last held it in 1996 with a 21-metre construction.

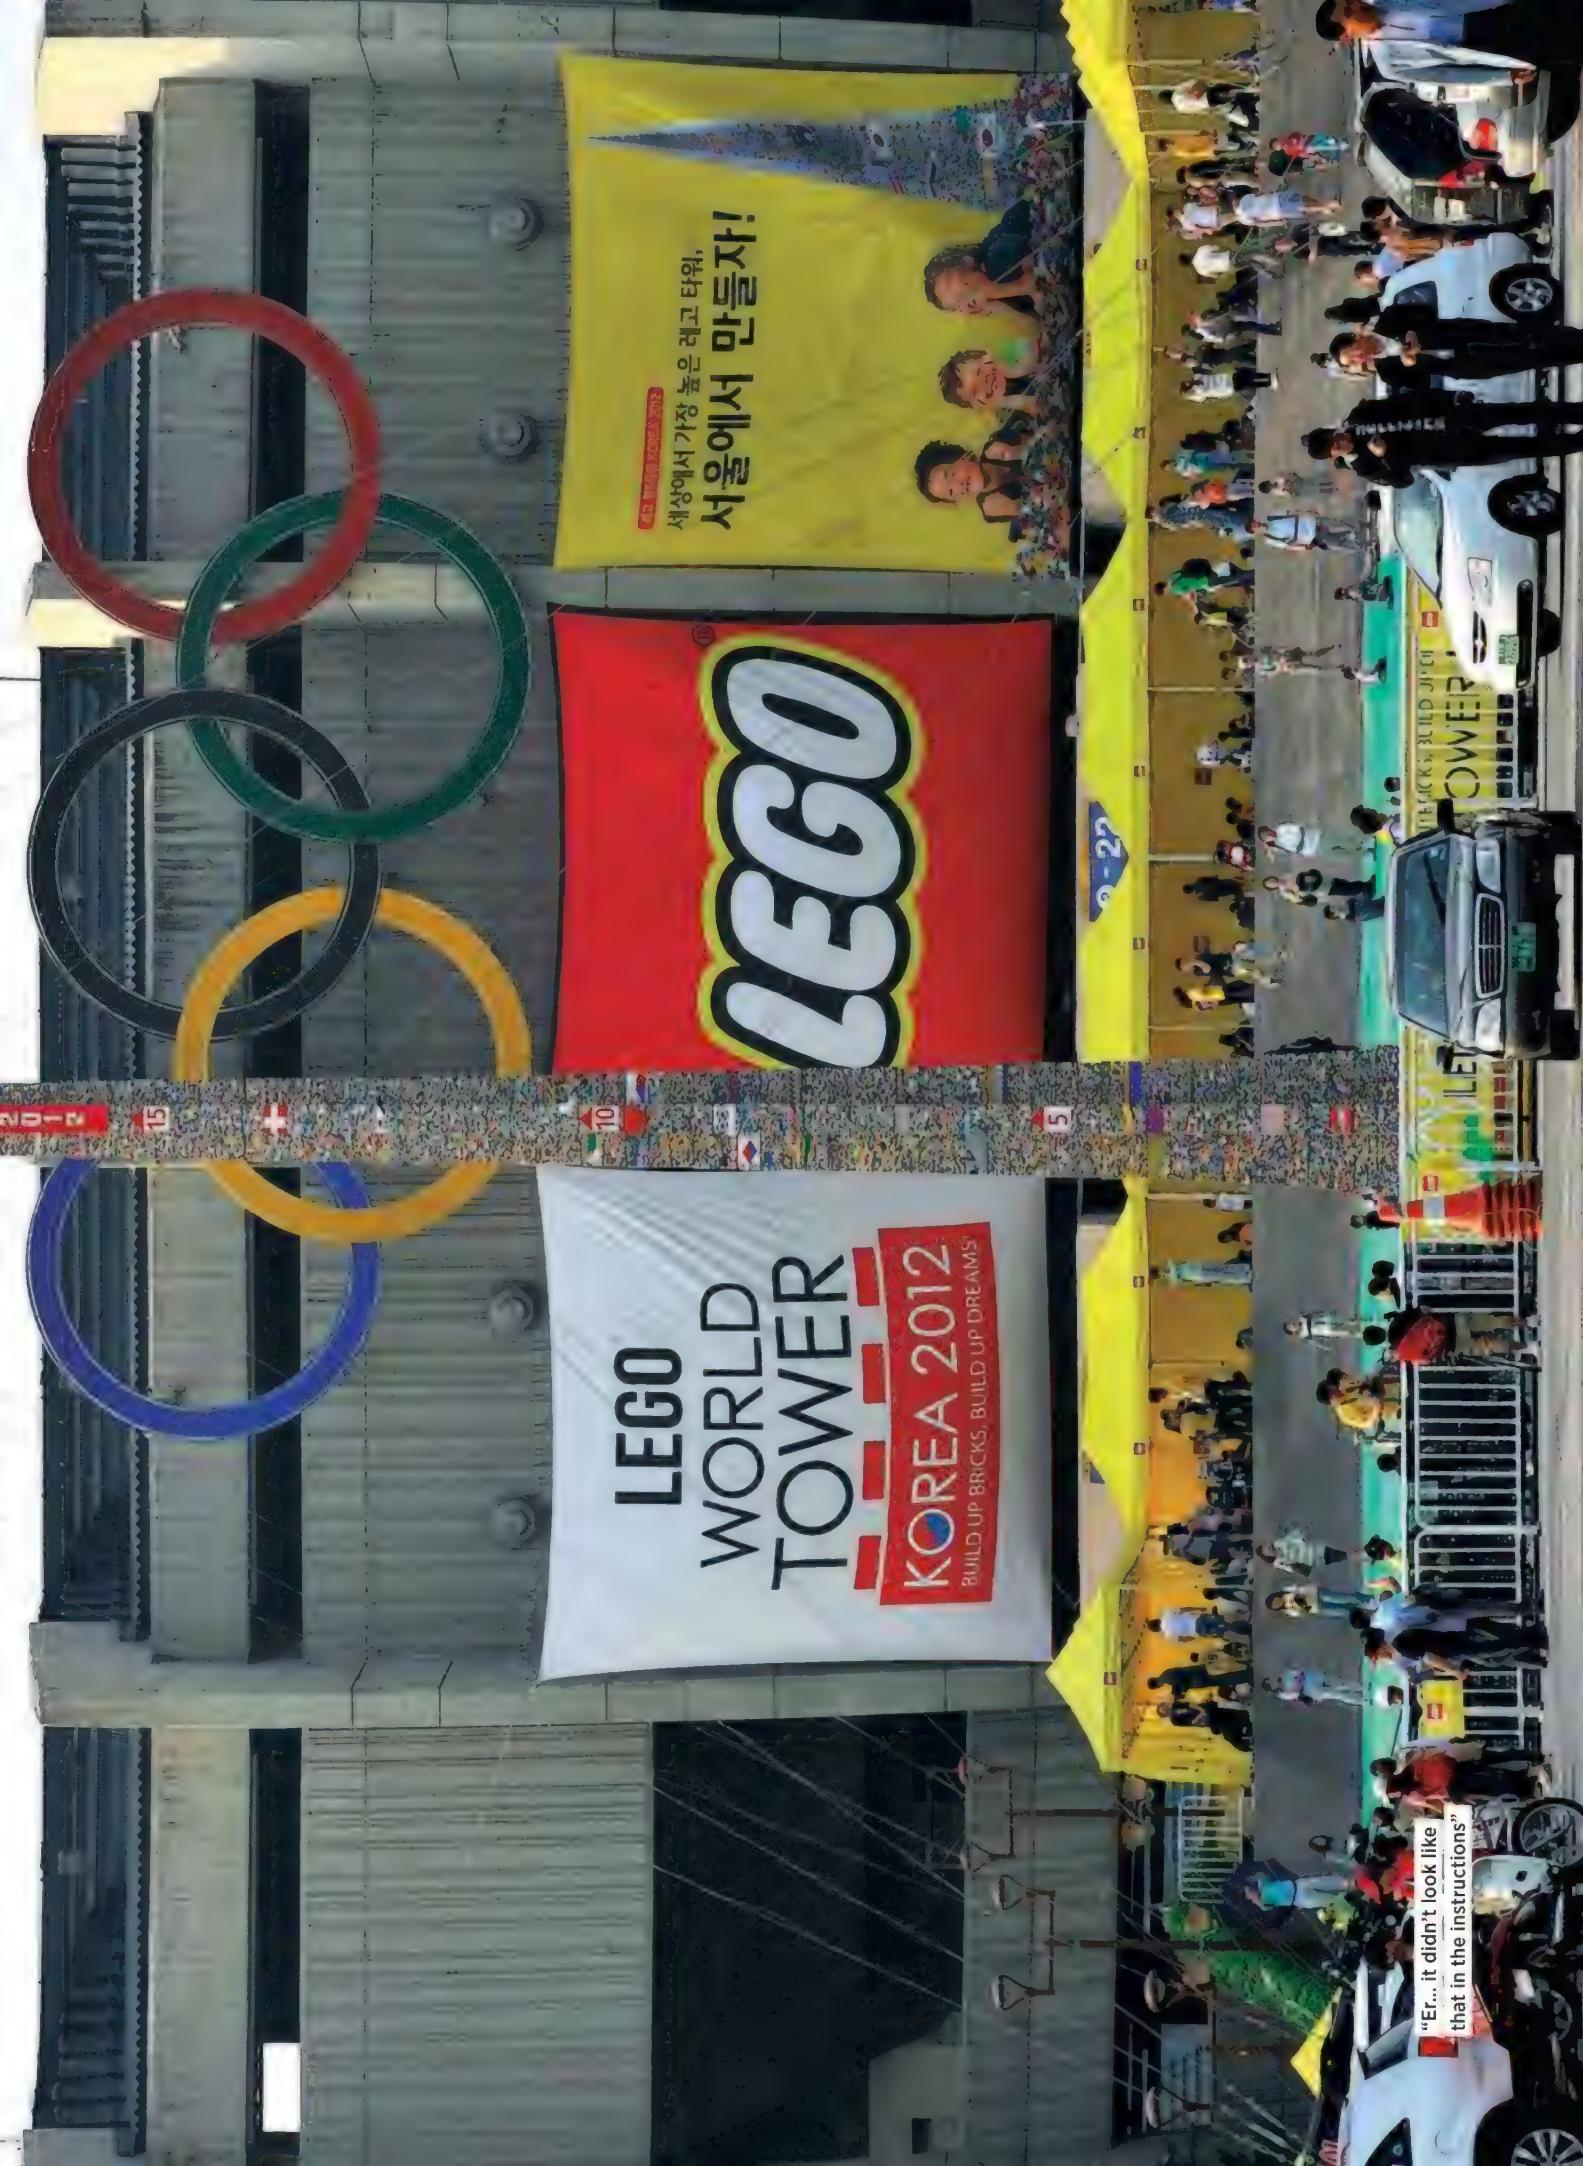

Record-breaking Lego tower!

It's the world's tallest toy brick building!

THE SECRET to man's evolutionary success is his eternally inquisitive nature, the desire to stretch the boundaries and make things taller, faster, better, more suited to their purpose. Indeed, as a species, we may well have reached the zenith of this evolutionary compulsion with this, the world's biggest Lego tower.

Standing proud, like a gloriously erect plastic penis, 31.9 metres over the Jamsil Stadium in Seoul, South Korea, it's a cathedral to architecture and endeavour. Plus, breaking it up must have been awesome!

Porsche's hybrid Bugatti-beater!

The new 918 Spyder does 201mph and 94mpg!

- Porsche isn't just dangling the carrot here, it's letting us nibble on the tip! Their first 918 Spyder concept shocked the 2010 Geneva motorshow like an angry fist to the face, but this is an even more evolved version.
- This 918 is designed to show the Stuttgart-based company is serious about taking the hybrid hypercar into the racing arena, following in the footsteps of their legendary 917 race car from the '70s (it's the car Steve McQueen drives in the film Le Mans).
- Like all German car companies, Porsche tests all its creations on the famous 13-mile Nürburgring circuit. The 918 Spyder monsters it in seven minutes 22 seconds – ten seconds quicker than its £300k Carrera GT.

Beating that time by ten seconds is like beating Usain Bolt by a clear ten metres.

- The 918 is a hybrid, meaning there's a 570bhp 4.6-litre V8 mounted in the middle that drives the back wheels. A pair of electric motors – one 80kW and one 90kW – drive both front and rear wheels. In "race hybrid" mode, the electric motors are powered up so that between them they push out over 200bhp. When combined, the result is more than 770bhp!
- But it doesn't have to be. If you just want to cruise, the 918 will run purely on lithium-ion battery power for up to 15 miles, and you can plug it in to charge it.
- Engineers claim the finished car will be able to do 0-62mph in under three seconds, even under nine seconds in pure electric mode. It'll do 93mph just on leccy! The top speed with all 770 horses unchained is 201mph.

- The V8 engine will rev to 9,000rpm and this improved version boasts vertical-pointing exhausts. They look like anti-aircraft guns and sound like, well, anti-aircraft guns. Hybrids needn't be silent.
- The 918 uses Porsche's PDK double-clutch paddle-shift gearbox, and can boast a carbon bodyshell as well as carbon-ceramic brakes. It also has four-wheel steering for extra stability, and if that's not enough, fully adaptive aerodynamics will keep the car kissing tarmac.
- Probably the most exciting eco-car in existence, the new 918 will be available to Gary Neville from next September for £650k (tax and congestion charge exempt, though). Ferrari? Over to you.

'The muscles in my leg exploded!'

Frightfully freakish accident mangles reader's limb on Friday 13th!

→ THAT CHEWED-up piece of meat you see before you is the left leg of awesomely named Nuts reader, Sam Strange, who came close to losing a limb after a run-in with a dodgy gate and a swerving car trailer on the unluckiest day of the year.

"I was pinned against a wall by the trailer after a gate swung shut and got caught in its wheel," recalls the 22-year-old Hampshire chap.

"I was screaming and trying my best not to pass out. My knee was completely crushed and my muscles swelled so much they exploded."

Seven operations later and Sam is just about able to wiggle his big toe. "The doc reckons I'll be sorted in six months or so, but at first they told me I was going to lose my foot."

Most blokes don't do superstition unless Stevie Wonder and a karaoke machine are involved, but we've a sneaky feeling Sam won't be hobbling under any ladders for quite some time.

LETTER OF THE WEEK!

Worried about being apart!

My girlfriend and I are in our last year at uni, so pretty soon we're going to be living really far apart. At uni we have an amazing sex life – so how can we keep up the excitement when we're not seeing each other every day? I'm worried!

JAMIE Lincoln

This is a common problem with university romances. If you both have jobs to go to, that's good, but not so good if they're far apart. See it as a test of your relationship. If it's strong enough it will survive.

She won't get her kit off!

I've been seeing a lass for about two months and she's amazing, but she doesn't really get naked in front of me and keeps her bra on during sex. She has a great body and I want her to be totally comfortable with me. How do I make her feel more confident about herself without coming across like a total perv?

KIRK Durham

I don't think there's anything perty about what you want. It's an unusual situation but some women are sensitive about their breasts, possibly because of their size. Tell her that you think she has a beautiful body and that you want to see the full beauty of her boobies, maybe suggest taking a bath together. If this works don't start sucking and pinching straight away but treat them with reverence.

I fancy dad's stepdaughter!

My dad has started seeing a new lady who has a daughter my age. As we spend more time together, I think I'm starting to fancy her! Is that really weird? What happens if my dad and her mum get married?

DANNY North London

I'd say there is no problem in you romancing the young lady. If they get married that has no bearing on your position – the daughter isn't a blood relative!

- If you've got something to ask Danni, just email her at thelesbian@nutsmagazine.co.uk or write to her at the usual address on p64.

“Keith Lemon tried to rap
to me...”

“...but he wasn’t very lyrical!”

wretch 32

The rapper on Becks, Shakespeare and rap-battling Keith Lemon!

Hi Wretch! We've seen outtakes of you rap-battling with Keith Lemon behind the scenes of the new Adidas Take The Stage Olympic advert. What's going on there?

He was trying to rap to me but he wasn't being very lyrical. He thought MCing had a different meaning so he was just saying the worst profanities that came into his head.

Would you release a single with Keith or have him in one of your videos?

Keith's really funny. I don't know what would happen if we came together. I think we'd probably collide.

Do people ever come up to you and challenge you to a rap battle in the street?

Sometimes. I just walk off. I was underground for eight years and no one wanted to battle me then. So I think, "Why should we go now? It's not going to benefit anyone."

David Beckham stars in the Adidas advert too. Is there anything Beckham wouldn't endorse?

Beckham is a smart businessman and I really respect that. When you're phenomenal at something, people are going to go, "We want you to advertise aftershave or boxer shorts or Adidas." As a brand, he's going to want to be as big and successful as he can.

What would Wretch 32 aftershave smell like?

I think it would smell like something that attracts women.

What, like Lynx?

Probably, yeah. That's probably the best scent. Anything that attracts women is good.

You're also performing at the ceremony to welcome the Olympic torch to Britain. Are you excited?

To be part of the Olympics in 2012 is a big thing for me. It's going to be historic. I really feel the positive energy and I really feel the vibe.

Is it true that your son is a bigger fan of Chipmunk than he is of you?

I think Chipmunk's choruses are catchier than mine. You know, kids, they like choruses, innit, so he's really into him. It's not cool, is it, to be a fan of your dad? But he's only young. When he gets older, he'll probably re-evaluate.

You've claimed rappers are the modern version of Shakespeare. In the future, will kids be studying the works of Jay-Z?

I hope so. When you break down rap's finest songs, there are similes, there are metaphors, there's terminology. Every term they use in English literature to teach Shakespeare you find in rap. Teachers should think, "Let's use what rappers do as the modern-day twist."

So you could get a GCSE in Wretch 32?

I used to have a song called Punctuation where I rap about how good I think I am at using correct grammar, so I'm saying, "Comma, full stop, paragraph, semi-colon, colon." I actually went to a few schools to give a lesson on English because of that song. It could be a cool way of educating kids today.

Lots of other UK rappers cite you as the best lyricist around today.

I'm OK, I'm not bad. I try to make sure that every line intertwines with another line somewhere later in the song. I try to make sure that everything makes sense and I try to take you through a journey.

How do you remember the words to your songs? Do you write them on your arm?

I don't. When I write a song that's about a story, I won't forget. When I'm just having fun, it's easier to forget. Unorthodox is easier to forget than Don't Go. Don't Go is personal and a journey so if I forget the line, I know what happens next in the story. Unorthodox is just me showing off my rapping skills.

Thanks, Wretch! Finally, how do you keep your beard so neat and tidy?

I don't shave it myself – I never touch it. My barber cuts my hair every two or three days. It's expensive but it keeps me looking sharp. If you saw me yesterday, I wasn't sharp!

● Wretch's new single Hush Little Baby (featuring Ed Sheeran) is out on 27 May

50 COOLEST CARS EVER!

Over 35,000 of you voted – here are your favourite motors ever!

AS VOTED
BY YOU!

50 PEUGEOT 205 GTI 1984-1994
120mph • 0-60: 8.6 secs

Available in two flavours – 1.6 or 1.9 – this is one of those cars that once driven, you'll never need sex again. So we've been told.

FACT: On a twisty B-road, the 205 GTi could see off any supercar of its time. Ace for rallying, it still looks handsome and that's why it deserves its place here.

46 VOLKSWAGEN GOLF GTI MK2 1984-1992
124mph • 0-60: 8.0 secs

Still a great car: quick, frisky, comfortable, economical and built to last. 88,278 sold in Britain alone and 6.3 million worldwide.

FACT: In November 1990 the millionth Golf rolled off the production line. Two limited 4WD Golf models were made – one called the Rallye, the other called the Country.

42 PORSCHE 959 1987-1988
197mph • 0-60: 3.6 secs

Porsche got fed up of Ferrari always winning the '80s supercar wars, so this was their tech-filled two-fingered salute to the Italians.

FACT: Golfer Nick Faldo bought one and loved it very much. When his third missus discovered he was playing away, she smashed it up... with one of his golf clubs.

38 BMW M3 CSL 2003
185mph • 0-6: 4.8 secs

Immediately identified by its carbon fibre roof, the CSL was sold with special Michelin tyres that were "not suitable for use in rain".

FACT: The fastest man on earth drives an M3. Well, drove one. Usain Bolt barrel-rolled his in Jamaica, then trod on a thorn climbing out of the wreck. He had to limp home.

49 HONDA CIVIC TYPE R 2001-present

146mph • 0-60: 6.4 secs

In order to get all 197bhp out of it, the V-tec 2.0-litre engine of the original Honda Civic Type R needed revving like a superbike.

FACT: Pictured is the current model, but you can pick up the original pre-2007 version for around £3.5k – which is about the same as the whole Greek economy is worth!

48 RENAULT 5 TURBO 2 1983-1986

124mph • 0-60: 6.6 secs

A puny front-drive car that grew a bulging bodykit, rear-wheel drive and a 160bhp engine where the back seats used to be.

FACT: Fancy picking one up? Expect to spend at least £30,000 finding one in decent condition then. This was the daddy of the 5 GT Turbo, after all.

47 VOLKSWAGEN BEETLE 1938-2003

50-85mph • 0-60: 17-24 secs

In the US it was nicknamed the Bug, in Germany the Kafer and in Mexico the Fusca. Its official name was the Volkswagen Type 1.

FACT: Notoriously slow but extremely reliable, more than 21.5 million people bought the Volkswagen Beetle, making it the world's most popular car.

45 FORD ESCORT RS TURBO 1984-1988

132mph • 0-60: 7.8 secs

The Golf Gti made front-wheel drive cool, but this turned it up to full boost. 132bhp was eeked out of a tiny 1.6 V8 turbo engine.

FACT: Princess Diana owned a black Escort RS Turbo, even though they weren't generally available to buy in black. It was a special order for royalty.

44 RANGE ROVER SPORT 2005-present

140mph • 0-60: 5.9 secs

An SUV that actually looks good. The Range Rover is as British as Yorkshire puddings, Barbour jackets and pub fights.

FACT: It was originally going to be called the Range Stormer and only have two doors. Popular among famous types, Stephen Ireland has a pink one. Probably.

43 FORD ESCORT MEXICO 1970-1975

108mph • 0-60: 9.0 secs

The first Escort and the best. Before the Cosworth days, this rally champion won the hearts of every red-blooded '70s bloke.

FACT: If your grandpa is the proud owner of a twin-cam or RS1600 Mk1 Escort, get him to leave it to you in his will. They're now worth up to £40,000!

41 FIAT ABARTH 595 1963-1971

72mph • 0-60: 25.7 secs

The Abarth was actually the fiery hot version of Fiat's urban midget 500. It also wasn't too popular with Mini Cooper drivers.

FACT: The little Fiat 500 this was derived from was actually launched two years before our Austin Mini. Not only that, it was 7.6cm (3in) shorter!

40 FORD SIERRA RS COSWORTH 1985-1987

142mph • 0-60: 6.2 secs

It had a manic turbocharged 2.0-litre engine and rear-wheel drive and the limited edition RS500s had 224bhp.

FACT: When it came out, this quickly became the most stolen car in Britain, with some insurers refusing to cover it unless the owners observed a curfew.

39 FERRARI TESTAROSSA 1984-1991

181mph • 0-60: 5.3 secs

Testarossa means redhead in Italian. It was wider than a Lambo Countach and it had a very unusual flat-12 cylinder engine.

FACT: Two things made the Testarossa an '80s icon – starring in Miami Vice driven by subtle undercover cop Don Johnson, and in the hit arcade video game Outrun.

37 DELOREAN DMC-12 1979-1982

125mph • 0-60: 9.6 secs

Unpainted stainless steel bodyshell, gullwing doors and an average Volvo V6 engine. Also the star of Back To The Future, of course.

FACT: DeLoreans only had 145bhp but that didn't stop them reaching the required speed for time travel (88mph). Three were used for filming Back To The Future.

36 SUBARU IMPREZA WRX P1 2000

155mph • 0-60: 4.7 secs

The Impreza revolutionised rallying and affordable supercar slaying. The P1 is easily identified because it's a two-door model.

FACT: In 2001 Berkshire-born rally driver Richard Burns became the first Brit to win the World Rally Championship. His car? None other than a blue Impreza.

35 MERCEDES BRABUS BULLIT 2008

217mph • 0-60: 3.9 secs

Brabus-tuned Mercs make AMGs look like something your nan would drive. The Bullit boasts a V12 with two turbos and 740bhp.

FACT: It takes a special kind of person to spend £300,000 on a C Class Benz, but find another that will only peak at 217mph for the sake of the tyres. ►

34 VOLKSWAGEN TYPE 2 SPLIT SCREEN 1950-1967

59mph • 0-60: It won't get there!

The cool factor's in the two-tone paint and the home-is-where-you-park-it attitude.

FACT: The Type 2 was sketched by a Dutchman who imported Beetles in 1947. Splits made before 1955 have one big back door instead of two and fetch up to £50k.

28 TVR CERBERA SPEED 12 1997
240mph • 0-60: 2.9 secs

Made in Blackpool from fibreglass, the 740bhp V12 7.7-litre was supposed to have the potential to get to 1,000bhp!

FACT: The Speed 12 promised to be one of the most powerful cars ever. Cruelly, only two were made. The Prodigy's Liam Howlett apparently owns one of two.

22 PORSCHE 911 GT3 RS 4.0 2011
193mph • 0-60: 3.9 secs

The GT3 RS 4.0 was the limited last cheer for the 997 series. 500bhp, plastic back windows, cage and a carbon fibre-rich diet.

FACT: Of the 600 made, only 40 GT3 RS 4.0 cars came to the UK. On 5 April – just before the 911's 50th birthday – original designer Ferdinand Alexander Porsche died.

16 MERCEDES 300SL GULLWING 1954-1957
135-165mph • 0-60: 8.8 secs

The iconic SL was actually related to Mercedes' 1952 Le Mans-winning racer, taking race car tech to the road.

FACT: All 1,400 SLs had steel bodyshells apart from 29 built from aluminium – one of which sold in January of this year for an enormous £2.9million.

33 CORVETTE ZR1 2009-present
205mph • 0-62: 3.6 secs

The American icon is 50 years old now, but showing no signs of retiring. The 647bhp 6.2 supercharged ZR1 is the fastest Corvette yet.

FACT: Corvette won its class in the Le Mans 24-hour last year, while in March, a 1738bhp Corvette crashed in Texas at 230mph while trying to set a speed record.

27 HONDA NSX 1989-2005
168mph • 0-60: 5.0 secs

Ayrton Senna helped develop it, which explains why the NSX used a lot of F1 tech. Used as the benchmark for the McLaren F1.

FACT: You can now pick one up from just £14k. Remember the NSX in Pulp Fiction? To jog your memory, Harvey Keitel's character Mr Wolf drives one.

32 AUDI RS4 2000-present
155.3-170mph • 0-62: 4.9 secs

The fastest car in Audi's range at the time, this became the fastest production family car of all with Quattro 4WD and twin turbos.

FACT: The first generation RS4s had their 380bhp 2.7 V6 twin turbo engines built in Britain by Cosworth. A new RS4 returns later this year with a 444bhp 4.2 V8.

26 MINI COOPER S 1963-1969
100mph • 0-60: 12.9 secs

The Mini Cooper stuck to the road like glue and felt faster than it was. The Mini was one of Britain's most memorable inventions.

FACT: The three Coopers in The Italian Job did numerous stunts. The 60ft rooftop jump in formation was performed at the Fiat factory in only one take.

20 JAGUAR XJ220 1992-1994
211mph • 0-60: 3.6 secs

In the late '80s Jaguar wanted to take a bite out of Ferrari and Porsche. Enter a British supercar with twin-turbo 542bhp V6.

FACT: Tests on the XJ220's engines were carried out by fitting the running gear into a Transit van for stealth blasts up the M1. It did 179mph on a test track!

15 FERRARI F40 1987-1992
201mph • 0-60: 3.7 secs

This is the car that fuelled the turbo craze – because it had two bolted on top of that V8 living under the slatted plastic engine lid.

FACT: The engine was only 2.9 litres, but don't be fooled – it could break 200mph and squeezed 478bhp. It was built to commemorate Ferrari's 40th birthday.

14 FORD GT 2003-2006
205mph • 0-62: 3.8 secs

It had a hefty price tag of £120k, but the Ford GT was a fire-breathing striped-up, supercharged V8 gladiator.

FACT: The '60s original was called a GT40 because it was only 40in in height. Ford dropped the "40" bit as this newer recreation is 43in high.

31 ARIEL ATOM 500 2003-present
 200mph • 0-60: 2.3 secs

No bodywork. No windows. No roof. No heater. But quicker than a Veyron. A ladder with an engine, put together in Somerset.

FACT: The entry level Atom is built with a Honda Civic engine. Buy the 500bhp V8 engined "500" and your skin will have to hold on pretty tight!

25 DODGE CHARGER 440 RT 1968-1970
 116mph • 0-60: 6.1 secs

In the masculine world of American muscle cars, the Charger rules. The 440 had 7.2 litres and 375bhp on thin 14in tyres!

FACT: Three hundred and twenty 1968 and 1969 Chargers were jumped and bent over a seven-year period in the original Dukes Of Hazzard TV show.

19 KOENIGSEGG CCR 2004-2006
 242+mph • 0-62: 3.2 secs

A hypercar without fancy wings and styling clutter, but with a twin supercharged 4.7 V8 – which produces nearly 1,000bhp.

FACT: The badge of a flying ghost on Koenigseggs pays tribute to the Swedish Air Force's Jet Squadron No1, whose old base is now Koenigsegg's HQ.

13 PAGANI ZONDA 2000-2011
 220mph • 0-62: 3.7 secs

The 555bhp Zonda cockpit is just the most dazzling, crafted sculpture of carbon and aircraft grade alloy you'll ever find.

FACT: This was arguably better quality than a Ferrari or Lamborghini – probably because Horacio Pagani had worked for both companies in the past.

30 MITSUBISHI EVO VI 1999-2002
 150mph • 0-60: 4.4 secs

The first EVO to be officially sold in the UK. On back roads no supercar could catch this 276bhp 4WD turbo monster.

FACT: With fearless Finnish driver Tommi Makinen at the wheel, the EVO VI won the World Rally Championship in 1999. Mitsubishi named a special edition after him.

24 LOTUS EXIGE 2004-present
 145mph • 0-62: 4.1 secs

A stiffer, sharper, hard-topped version of the Elise. No back window, rear spoiler visible from space and over 32mpg.

FACT: It was a Lotus Esprit that turned into a submarine in the James Bond film The Spy Who Loved Me, and Sharon Stone drove an Esprit in the film Basic Instinct.

29 PORSCHE 356 SPEEDSTER 1955-1956
 108mph • 0-60: 14.5 secs

The 356 Speedster was feather-light and could be driven at full throttle on any roads. With only 75bhp there was no other option.

FACT: Movie legend Steve McQueen's first brand new car was a black Speedster. He sold it in the '60s and bought it back in 1974. Speedsters today are worth £150,000+.

23 AUDI QUATTRO TURBO 1980-1988
 155mph • 0-60: 4.8 secs

Audi's radical 4WD system changed everything, making people see that all-wheel drive cars weren't just clunky old tractors.

FACT: The ultimate was the limited edition short wheelbase Sport Quattro, with 304bhp. Only 220 were made and they were rally cars for the street.

17 LAMBORGHINI COUNTACH 1973-1990
 180-196mph • 0-60: 4.8-5.8 secs

Lambo's Countach survived three decades with various tweaks. Early cars had less power but had the higher top speed.

FACT: There's zero rear visibility in the Lamborghini Countach. We've got its 6.25-litre V12 and all its breathing vents to thank for this inconvenience.

12 FERRARI 458 ITALIA 2009
 202mph • 0-62: 3.3 secs

This is possibly the first car with a moustache – a carbon one at that – which bends at speed for extra downforce/grip.

FACT: It does 0-125mph in 10.4 seconds. The convertible boasts the world's first mid-engined retractable hard top. Oh, and the indicator switches are on the steering wheel!

11 AUDI R8 V10 2009
 197mph • 0-62: 3.9 secs

Audi owns Lambo, so you can forgive them for nicking the Gallardo's 5.2-litre V10 to put in this. With 518bhp, it's awesome.

FACT: The R8 V10 is distinguishable from its V8 brother with full LED headlights, different Y-design rims and two – not four – bars on the rear air vents.

10 LAMBORGHINI MIURA P400 1967-1972
186mph • 0-60: 6.2 secs

The Miura gave birth to the title supercar. The Italian Job intro features a red Miura whizzing around twisty alpine roads.

FACT: Ferruccio Lamborghini initially built tractors and air-con units but turned his hand to sports cars after buying numerous Ferraris and disliking their build quality.

9 AC SHELBY COBRA 427 1962-1968
165mph • 0-60: 4.2 secs

When Carroll Shelby decided to build race cars for the road, he squeezed an American Ford V8 inside the British AC Ace.

FACT: The 427 refers to the engine size in cubic inches, or seven litres in UK terms. It's thought the Cobra was the main reason for UK motorways having a 70mph limit.

8 LAMBORGHINI MURCIELAGO 2001-2010
212mph • 0-60: 3.2 secs

The Murcielago was the first four-wheel drive Lamborghini to go into production after the company was bought by Audi.

FACT: The Murcielago is named after a bull that survived 28 stabs from a matador in 1879. The beast fought with such passion that the matador chose to spare its life.

7 BUGATTI VEYRON 16.4 SUPER SPORT 2010
268mph • 0-62: 2.5 secs

For £1,430,000 you can get one of 30 built with 1,183bhp that does 0-125mph in 6.7 secs. That should be enough power, yeah?

FACT: The 16.4 stands for 16 cylinders and four turbos. The first Veyron to crash was in Britain, eight days after logistics manager Ajay Soni bought it. It hit an Astra.

6 FORD MUSTANG SHELBY GT350-H 1966
120mph • 0-60: 6.6 secs

The Mustang was always adored by blokes and ladies alike and the Shelby versions were tuned for lightness and horsepower.

FACT: Back in 1966, Hertz bought a fleet of 936 Mustangs and hired them out. Known as Rent-a-racers, many were caned on tracks then given back with mulled tyres.

5 JAGUAR E-TYPE 1961 - 1974
151mph • 0-60: 7.0 secs

Cracking 150mph instantly made the E-type the world's fastest production car. It went on to wipe the floor on the world's race tracks.

FACT: The E-type is actually a hatchback. Mr Enzo Ferrari, the boss of Ferrari, described its aerodynamic shape as the most beautiful car in the world.

4 FERRARI 250 GT SPIDER CALIFORNIA SWB 1960-1963
149mph • 0-60: 8.0 secs

With just 56 produced, the SWB is one of the most collectable Ferraris in existence.

FACT: Made famous by classic '80s movie Ferris Bueller's Day Off where it gets joyridden and smashed up, the car in the film was actually an MG with a replica bodyshell.

3 MCLAREN F1 LM 1992-1998
242.96mph • 0-60: 2.9 secs

The F1 was designed by a chap called Gordon Murray and the LM was the holder of the 0-100-0mph record. It took 11.5 secs.

FACT: To stop the carbon fibre panels overheating, the F1's engine lid is lined with real gold foil. Every F1 has 16g of gold in it. Rowan Atkinson crunched his in 1999.

2 ASTON MARTIN ONE 77 2010-present
220mph • 0-62: 3.7 secs

The One 77 is a 750bhp brute, thanks to a 7.3-litre V12 and a full carbon fibre chassis clothed in handmade aluminium panels.

FACT: At £1.7million (+VAT), this is Aston's most expensive and advanced offering ever. Only 77 of the One 77s will ever be made. And they've all sold out already!

1 ASTON MARTIN DB5 1963-65
145mph • 0-60: 7.1 secs

It might look almost identical to the DB4, but Aston's DB5 had a 4.0-litre engine (compared to 3.7-litre), a five-speed gearbox and triple carburettors. It may be old, but this magnesium aluminium-bodied beaut packed an impressive 282 horses.

FACT: The DB5 was made famous as the best-known James Bond car, featuring in several 007 flicks, most notably Goldfinger, Thunderball, GoldenEye, Tomorrow Never Dies and Casino Royale. It's due to make a welcome reappearance in the upcoming Bond flick, Skyfall. Only one of the two original gadget-laden 007 cars are known to survive, with it selling at auction in 2010 for an incredible £2.6million. The other car was nicked in 1997, never to be seen again.

SUPER CAR ON FIRE

LAMBO GALLARDO

Where: Fort William

Car value: £152,000

Evidence that powerful cars just aren't built for sleepy Scottish towns.

FERRARI 458

Where: Paris

Car value: £200,000

Is he going to try to put out the fire on his own?
Good luck, monsieur!

FERRARI 599 GTB

Where: UK

Car value: £212,000

By going to "fire up the Ferrari", we doubt the unlucky owner meant this.

LAMBO MIURA

Where: Los Angeles

Car value: £100,000

It's safe to say this has a bit more wrong with it than a defective brake light.

LAMBO GALLARDO

Where: Athens

Car value: £152,000

This blazing Lambo takes the expression "burning rubber" to the next level.

Superbabe + supercar = super-sexy shoot!

"I don't think the car could take the weight of my boobs!"

WE LOVE a good old barney at Nuts. If you were to drop by on any given day, chances are you'd find us arguing over something. Granted, it's usually over whose turn it is to make the tea, but when Roy Hodgson was appointed England boss, you can imagine the carnage in the office!

However, there's one thing we can all agree on – we love cars and beautiful women. And if our overloaded inbox is anything to go by, so do you lot. So we thought it high time we combined two of our favourite things – an awesome supercar and superbabe Lucy Pinder. Buckle up, gents, the next few pages might just drive you wild! Sorry.

Hi Lucy! How are you enjoying this turbo-charged shoot?

Hello! It's been so much fun. It's been amazing to work with such an awesome car – although I've spent the day being paranoid that I'll dent the bonnet or something. I don't think it could take the weight of my boobs!

What's the world's sexiest car?

There are quite a few to choose from, aren't there? I do like my supercars, especially when they're in black. I love the Aston Martin DBS and the sound it makes. It's such a sexy rumbling noise. Lamborghinis are quite exciting, too. But I think my car is quite sexy.

What car do you drive?

It's a little black Audi TT. Its nickname is "Titty" because TT sounds a bit rude when you say it fast. Sometimes, I forget who I'm talking to and I'll say, "Oh, I love my Titty," and they'll give me a strange look!

Do you think people can be turned on by cars?

Yes, definitely. I know blokes who get literally turned on by supercars, but I think girls can feel excited by a car, too. ►

Nuts

Lucy Pinder

You took part in the Modball Rally recently, didn't you?

Yes, me and Rhian Sugden did it last year. It was so funny but also exhausting. In Europe, the drive between cities is so long, and then you get to your destination and there's a massive all-night party! We're doing it again this year.

Did you flash any other drivers?

I'm sure someone flashed at some point. I think it's a good way to keep people awake, so we're doing a service to other drivers by showing our boobs.

If you could go on any road trip, where would you go?

I've already done the classic Route 66 in America, which was incredible. I really want to go to the Monaco Grand Prix this year, but I'm not sure how likely that is. It would be amazing to drive down there.

Do you think everyone should try car sex at some point?

Yes, it's good fun! You feel really naughty and young when you're doing it. You have to make sure that you're doing it in a secluded place, or else you might get mistaken for a dodgy dogger or something. Everyone should try it, though.

What sort of a driver are you?

I'm very considerate. I don't like ditherers, though, so I can find myself getting a bit "horn happy", so to speak. I'm the kind of girl who likes to zoom off as soon as the lights change.

Would you be any good at being Top Gear's Star In A Reasonably Priced Car?

I'd be amazing! You get The Stig to teach you for a bit, don't you? I'm really good at taking things on board. I saw that Rosie Jones did it, so I'd be looking to beat her. Top Gear should have a Nuts girl special.

Finally, would your boobs make sufficient air bags in a collision?

Hopefully, I'll never have to find out, but it's a comforting thought knowing my boobs are there for me!

A close-up photograph of Lucy Pinder's face and upper body. She has long, dark brown hair and is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. Her skin is smooth and well-lit. A small portion of her bare shoulder and chest are visible on the right side of the frame.

Very Important People

CHANNEL 4/HD • 9.30pm

The impressions show starring Morgana Robinson continues. Loads of celebrities get fun poked at them, like Bear Grylls, Simon Cowell, Fearne Cotton and Amy Childs. And the Amy Childs impersonation is almost as cute as the real thing. Which is odd.

Alan Carr: Chatty Man

CHANNEL 4/HD • 10pm

Alan welcomes fellow comedian John Bishop to the studio, before Hollywood star Cuba Gooding Jr drops by to discuss his role in Second World War drama Red Tails. Plan B completes a corking line-up to do a song from new album III Manors.

Dexter

FX/HD • 10pm

It may not be quite as consistently brilliant as it used to be but season six has hit its stride in recent weeks. Tonight sees TV's favourite serial-killing forensics expert try to track down the Doomsday killers while staying ahead of the Homicide Division. Poor old Dex. Luckily, help's at hand from an unexpected quarter.

Norway vs England

ITV1/HD • 7pm

Roy Hodgson manages England for the first time and gives his Euro 2012 squad a run-out against a handy team that only just missed out on qualification. Nobody will want to get injured, but everyone will want to impress the new boss. Interesting.

Carl Froch vs Lucian Bute

SKY SPORTS 1/HD • 10pm

The IBF super-middleweight title is at stake in Nottingham, where local hero Carl will be hoping to bring the Romanian-Canadian's nine-fight streak of successful title defences to an end and banish the memory of defeat to Carl Ward last time out.

ESPN • 3am

Quick recap. Antonio Noguera (Big Nog) mentors Junior Dos Santos (JDS). JDS wins the heavyweight title by flattening the "unbeatable" Cain Velasquez. Frank Mir (above left) wins a shot at the title by snapping Big Nog's arm. Gulp! Pre fight, Mir ruthlessly taunts JDS. Tonight we find out how far inside JDS' skull Mir has crawled.

F1: Monaco Grand Prix

SKY SP F1/HD & BBC1 • from 11.30am

The narrow streets of Monaco await the drivers in the sixth round of the season, which sees the familiar name of Sebastian Vettel topping the table with Fernando Alonso. So, time for Brit hopes Lewis Hamilton and Jenson Button to make their moves, eh?

Soccer Aid 2012

ITV1/HD • 6pm

A load of former footballers mix it up with celebrities. The England side sees the likes of Teddy Sheringham and Martin Keown rubbing shoulders with Mark Owen and Jonathan Wilkes (who's not much of a celebrity but a very good footballer). The Rest Of The World has Roy Keane and Ruud van Nistelrooy. They'll win then.

LADIES CONFESS! TO OUR SECRETARY!

Racy revelations from our female readers!

CONFESION OF THE WEEK!

'We had sex on the floor'

I WAS on a girls' holiday in Greece. At our hotel, there was a nice guy who worked on reception who I'd been flirting with through the week. On the last day I left the pool to get a towel from my room. As I walked past reception, the guy said he'd get one from the store cupboard. I followed him in and before I knew it his hands were over my body and his tongue was in my mouth. He grabbed a condom and we had sex on the floor. I gave him a final snog before I went back to the pool. It was so exciting lying there knowing what I'd done.

Sarah via email

'I took him in my mouth'

DOING THE early morning shift at the pub I work at is normally boring and lonely, but one day a couple of builders came in for breakfast. Only me and the chef were working, and he was busy in the kitchen, so I had plenty of time to chat and flirt with the builders as I was feeling especially horny. When I took their order, I offered them the full works and gave a cheeky wink to the younger one. He got the hint and when their food came, I asked in a suggestive way if he wanted any extras. A couple of minutes later I went to the toilet and the younger builder followed me in. There was no messing around – we got down and dirty straight away as he got out his rock-hard manhood and I took it all in my mouth until he came. He went back to his breakfast like nothing had happened and I carried on working knowing that I'd had a very generous tip!

Em via email

'His hand went in my bikini'

IT WAS a really hot, sunny day so my boyfriend and I decided to go swimming at our local pool to cool off. We were sat in the Jacuzzi when all of a sudden he slipped his hand in my bikini bottoms and started playing with me. I thought I'd return the favour by putting my hand down his trunks and pleasuring him. We were getting really aroused so we thought we'd better go home and finish off there. We went to the unisex changing rooms but found we just couldn't wait any longer.

He bent me over and we started having sex there and then. I tried to be quiet but was so aroused that I couldn't help but let out a muffled scream. After that we got changed as quickly as we could and left. We haven't been back to the pool since.

'Our sexy fun in a layby'

MY BOYFRIEND and I recently went on a dirty weekend to Manchester and had a great time. When we were driving back, though, we hit a huge tailback of traffic on the motorway. We barely moved for what seemed like ages and I was getting really bored just sitting there, so I decided to go down on my boyfriend to spice things up a bit. As soon as the cars started moving, we got off the motorway at the next exit, and found a quiet layby where things got a lot more entertaining. It was the perfect end to a steamy weekend and also saved us from hours of boredom. Now, whenever we go for a long drive, we never mind too much if there's traffic – it gives us the perfect excuse for a replay!

EXCLUSIVE!

The Ox: 'I'm honoured to represent my country!'

Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain on the Euros, his sporting heroes and almost becoming a cricketer!

Hi Alex! How does it feel to have made the England squad for Euro 2012?

I'm delighted. To play for your country is fantastic and also a bit daunting! I won't put any pressure on myself, though. I got this far by playing my natural game, getting at defenders and being positive, and I'll do exactly the same if I get a chance at the Euros. These are exciting times for England, so I'm honoured to be a part of things.

Are there any players you're looking forward to seeing in Poland and Ukraine?

The two that stand out for me are Cristiano Ronaldo and Andres Iniesta. I love everything about Ronaldo – his skills, his pace, his confidence, his swagger. Every time he gets the ball, you're on the edge of your seat. Iniesta is on another planet, too – he sees the game so quickly. He also plays for the two best teams on the planet, so he can't be bad!

It is true that you almost never made it as a footballer?

I was a late developer and Southampton had serious doubts about whether I'd ever have the physical attributes to be a pro. When I was 15, they told me I wasn't going to get a scholarship. I only had a couple of months to prove them wrong, so I went away, worked on my fitness, spent a lot of time in the gym and bulked up a bit. Eventually, they gave me my contract.

Sounds like it was a pretty nerve-racking time for you?

Looking back, yeah, it was stressful, but it made me into the player I am. It toughened me up but also, on the playing side, I think if you're a smaller footballer, your mind has to work quicker. I'd like to think I have that in my game today.

If the football hadn't worked out, what would you have done?

My senior school was all about rugby and cricket, so I threw myself into both sports. At cricket, I was an all-rounder. I was actually given a trial by Hampshire as a wicket-keeping batsman. As regards rugby, I played scrum-half or full-back and I was alright at it. I was offered a trial for London Irish but couldn't do it because Southampton wouldn't have been best pleased. I don't have any regrets because football was always my first love – and I didn't enjoy getting smashed up by the big lads anyway!

People have compared you to Theo Walcott. Are you similar?

We both came through the youth system at Southampton, then joined Arsenal at a similar age. And both being attacking players, I suppose it's only natural for people to compare us. I'm not complaining at all because Theo is an incredibly talented footballer, but I don't really see it myself. I'm more of an attacking midfielder while Theo is a winger or a striker, so we're completely different players.

When you were a kid, who were your sporting idols?

Thierry Henry was like a god to me. The stuff he did almost defied belief – I'd be watching Match Of The Day with my mouth open. When he came back to Arsenal and I got a chance to work with him in training, it was like I'd died and gone to heaven! He spent a lot of time talking to me and telling me to believe in myself. That was something I'll never forget.

Thanks for the chat, Alex!

One last thing – your dad is former England winger Mark Chamberlain. Now you're following in his footsteps, how has he helped you develop as a footballer?

My dad played at the highest level but he never put me under pressure. He'd gently guide me, take me to trials and give me advice when I needed it. Did I feel overshadowed by what he'd achieved? Not at all. He was just my dad looking out for me like he always did. Both my parents made sacrifices for me and hopefully, now all their love and support has started to pay off!

"Ooh, this song's got a good beat!"

THE YOUNG LAD'S GOT TALENT

10 BLACKBURN 2-3 LIVERPOOL

10 April

"Andy Carroll's return to form began here. He scored the winner after Liverpool had squandered a two-goal lead. Blackburn only won one more game."

9 MAN CITY 3-2 SPURS

22 January

"This had it all. Bale's wonder strike got Spurs level at 2-2, then Defoe missed from a yard. Then Balotelli scored the winner after stamping on Parker's head. Unbelievable!"

Kammy's top ten games of the season!

The top-flight matches that left Chris drooling!

IT'S BEEN an incredible season in the Premier League, with more goal-fests than I can remember in one campaign. I had trouble narrowing them down, but here are my top ten games of the season!

8 BLACKBURN 4-3 ARSENAL

17 September

"A result where you look back and wonder how it happened. Blackburn's first win, but it didn't convince fans about Steve Kean. They were right."

7 CHELSEA 3-3 MAN UNITED

5 February

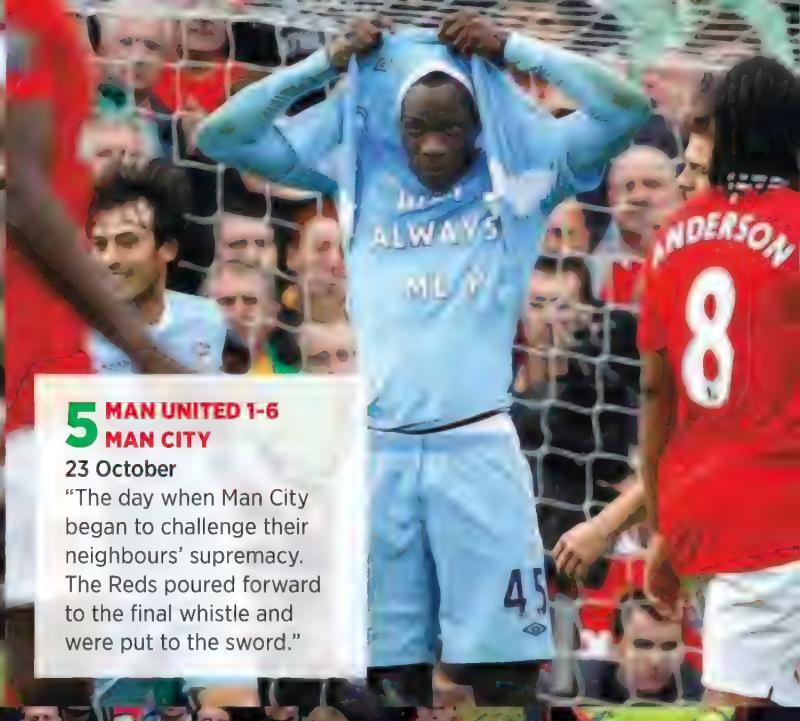

"Chelsea raced to a 3-0 lead but Man United showed amazing character. It was the beginning of the end for AVB – a month later, he was out of a job."

6 ARSENAL 5-2 SPURS

26 February

"Another cracking comeback. Spurs were two up and cruising then collapsed. It turned both teams' seasons. Arsenal charged towards third while Spurs struggled."

5 MAN UNITED 1-6 MAN CITY

23 October

"The day when Man City began to challenge their neighbours' supremacy. The Reds poured forward to the final whistle and were put to the sword."

4 MAN UNITED 8-2 ARSENAL

28 August

"A score no one could have predicted. It was a big embarrassment for Wenger and his team, but they used it as a positive to turn their season around."

3 MAN UNITED 4-4 EVERTON

22 April

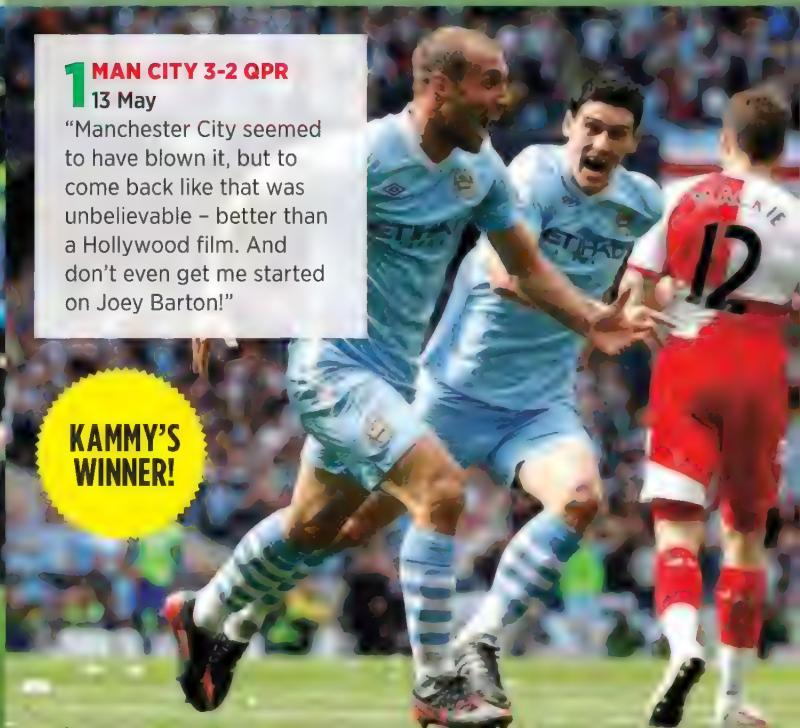

"If you ask any United fan, they'll say this is when they lost the title. Fergie's boys switched off and two late Everton goals opened the door for Man City."

2 CHELSEA 3-5 ARSENAL

29 October

"RVP at his very best. The Dutchman bagged a hat-trick as the Gunners grabbed two goals in the last five minutes. It could have ended 10-10!"

1 MAN CITY 3-2 QPR

13 May

"Manchester City seemed to have blown it, but to come back like that was unbelievable – better than a Hollywood film. And don't even get me started on Joey Barton!"

EXCLUSIVE!

Froch: 'I'd love to punch Piers Morgan!'

Brit boxing star Carl "The Cobra" Froch on Lucian Bute, whacking celebrities and his pre-fight nookie ban!

→ Hi Carl! You're fighting Lucian Bute for the IBF world super-middleweight title in Nottingham. Is it good to be fighting in the UK again?

Yeah, definitely, what with the amount of fights I've had away recently. The last couple of years, they've all been in other countries, so to fight in England is great and to fight in my home town is even better. It's great the fans don't have to fly around the world!

Has preparation gone well?

Great. I always have a 12-week training camp so I've been on it for a while. I ease down before the fight and have four weeks of hard sparring before that, so I'm exactly where I need to be.

Does anything worry you about facing Bute?

Nothing really worries me. I've been in there with the best in the world, so there's nothing about him that genuinely concerns me. He's a great fighter, knows what he's doing and I respect him, but I'm not concerned.

What's the plan? Do you reckon you'll knock him out?

I've got the power to knock him out, but it's whether or not I can land the punch. It's not an easy thing to do when you're facing top-level fighters, so we'll see. I don't think it'll be a quick fight because I don't think he'll be stupid enough to mix it with me early on.

You're 35 in July. How much longer can you carry on?

I want to win this title and defend it a few times, so we're looking at about two years.

What do you think of British boxing at the moment?

British boxing is looking good. I'm contending for a world title, Amir Khan is fighting for a world title and maybe David Haye will get his title shot again as well. Boxing is steady at the moment but it has the potential to be very good – especially at the Olympics.

Is there anyone you'd like to fight domestically?

Well, if George Groves or James DeGale win a world title, there would be a potential fight there in the future, but we'll see. I've got bigger things to worry about at the moment. When I win this IBF world title, there's a potential rematch against that awkward son of a bitch Andre Ward!

If you could face any celebrity in the ring, who would it be?

I'd love to punch Piers Morgan in the face! There's something about him that really rattles me. He's got one of those faces and the way he carries on winds me up. I think he winds everyone up, actually. I don't hate him, but I wouldn't mind putting a body shot in to him.

If you weren't a boxer, what would you be doing?

I'd have been in the Royal Marines. I like the discipline and the training they do. I was actually close to doing that.

How close?

I had an office job for a few years after college, then I took amateur boxing up again. Without that amateur success, I'd have joined the forces.

Thanks, Carl. Finally, do you impose a sex ban before fights?

Yeah, it's quite a common thing for boxers to go without when they've got a big fight coming up. I usually try to go for six weeks, which is hard. Have you seen my girlfriend [model Rachael Cordingley]? She's not bad looking!

- Carl Froch vs Lucian Bute is on Saturday 26 May at 10pm on Sky Sports 1/HD

CARL'S CAREER!

Froch has had 30 fights in his professional career, winning 28 (20 by knockout) and losing just two.

"I try to go six weeks without sex before a fight – it's hard!"

The mummy was up for a scrap

"Quote me on that!"

This week's biggest match debaters!

"There are so many players down in the QPR box, it's like Platoon"

Sky's new war reporter, Paul Merson.

"Roberto Mancini looks like Basil Fawlty"

Alan Hansen spots the City manager starting to lose the plot.

"Coming up, we've got a camp report from Chelsea"

Dan Walker reveals Louie Spence is the new Football Focus reporter.

"Arsenal need three players – a keeper, a defender, a forward and a wide player"

Charlie Nicholas has trouble counting to four.

"The Newcastle ground will be full of 52,000 idiots"

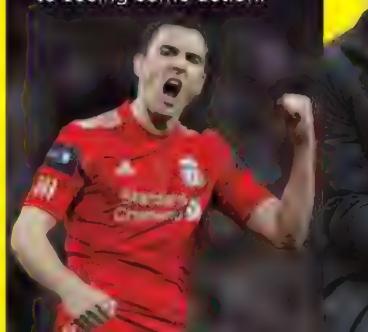

Phil Brown slates the Toon Army.

OO-ER SOUNDS A BIT RUDE CORNER!

"I've had some in and out this season"

Stewart Downing admits to seeing some action.

"I need Carol Vorderman to help me with it"

We've all had those thoughts, Alan Pardew.

"It was hard all afternoon"

Roberto Mancini gets a bit over-excited.

Pub ammo on... smiling

- Biologists believe smiling originated as a sign of fear, stemming from the way monkeys show teeth as a sign of aggression.
- In Japan, smiling is often used as a way of showing confusion or anger.
- Psychologists have found that even if you're in a bad

- mood, you can instantly lift your spirits by forcing yourself to smile.
- National Smile Month began on 20 May.
